

Career Planning – Taking Action

Use the four stage Career Planning process, including the Taking Action stage, to work towards your work and learning goals.

Listed below are some suggested actions to help you move through the career planning process and get to the 'Taking Action' stage of your career plan.

1. Write a 'wish list' of what you want out of your job, work or career. Choose your top five wants.
2. Think about where you are now, where you want to be and how you will get there. Write your goal down.
3. Set time aside for career research.
4. Use the resources and tools on the Career Centre site to help you research the Western Australian job market, the occupations and industries that interest you: careercentre.dtwd.wa.gov.au.
5. Find out about the skills, experience and qualifications employers are seeking in your occupations of interest? How does this relate to what you want? Are there any gaps?
6. Organise supervised work experience or voluntary work. Test drive your option/s. Build your network of contacts- (Who do you know? Who do they know?)
7. Using the information you have gathered prioritise your top three work and/or learning options. Compare each of your options with your top five wants from your 'wish list'. Choose your best option for you now, keeping aside your two back up options.
8. Write a step by step action plan including work and learning steps, where you can get help and who will support you.
